

Freedom of Information Act 2000 (Section 50)

Decision Notice

Date: 20 October 2009

Public Authority: British Broadcasting Corporation
Address: 2252 White City
201 Wood Lane
London
W12 7TS

Summary

The complainant asked the BBC for information relating to BBC Northern Ireland Children in Need Friday night broadcasts in 2005 and 2006 along with details of any BBC payments made to individual presenters. The BBC advised the complainant that his request was outside the scope of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (the "Act") on the basis that it was not a public authority in relation to this request because the information was held for the purpose of journalism, art or literature. The BBC refused to release details of payments made to individual presenters however, voluntarily released some information relating to the Children in Need broadcasts on BBC Northern Ireland television in 2005 and 2006. Having considered the purposes for which this information is held, the Commissioner has concluded that the BBC has no obligations to comply with Parts I to V in respect of the request in question.

The Commissioner's Role

1. The Commissioner's duty is to decide whether the BBC has complied with its duties under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (the "Act"). This Notice sets out his decision.

Background

2. Part VI of Schedule 1 of the Act states that the BBC is a public authority 'in respect of information held for purposes other than those of journalism, art or literature'. This is commonly known as the Schedule 1 derogation. Similar provisions exist in relation to Channel 4 and S4C - as a group, these organisations are called public service broadcasters.

The Request

3. On 9 March 2007, the complainant submitted the following request to the BBC:

'I am seeking

- a. A list of all the TV presenters who worked for BBC Children in Need Friday night broadcasts in 2005 and 2006*
 - b. Details of any BBC payments made to individual presenters for working on the Children in Need live Friday night broadcasts in 2005 and 2006. Please name each presenter and any sum paid to each*
 - c. A total for all additional staff costs incurred as a result of the Children in Need live Friday night broadcasts in 2005 and 2006'.*
4. The BBC responded on 9 March 2007 and explained to the complainant that his request was outside the scope of the Act because the BBC and the other public service broadcasters are covered by the Act only in respect of information held for purposes other than those of journalism, art or literature and referred the complainant to Schedule 1, Part VI of the Act. However on this occasion the BBC advised they were happy to respond to the request and voluntarily released some information relating to the Children in Need broadcasts on BBC Northern Ireland television in 2005 and 2006.
5. The BBC voluntarily answered parts 'a' and 'c' of the request and provided the complainant with the information he had requested but refused to comply with part 'b' of the request on the basis of the Schedule 1 derogation.
6. The BBC subsequently informed the complainant that it did not offer an internal review procedure when its position was that the requested information fell outside the scope of the Act. However, the BBC did inform the complainant of his right to contact the Commissioner and ask him to review the BBC's decision.

The Investigation

Scope of the case

7. On 8 May 2007, the complainant contacted the Commissioner in order to complain about the way the BBC had handled his request.

Chronology

8. On 25 May 2007, the Commissioner wrote to the BBC to advise it had received a complaint into the way the BBC had handled his request for information.

9. Whilst the case was open the Commissioner informed the complainant that he was awaiting the outcome of the following High Court cases, BBC v Sugar & Information Commissioner [2009] EWHC 2349 (Admin) and BBC v Information Commissioner [2009] EWHC 2348 (Admin). The cases were concluded and the judgments published by the High Court on 2 October 2009. Both cases involved the application of the derogation by the BBC. The Commissioner has applied the findings of the two judgments to the facts of this case.

Analysis

Substantive Procedural Matters

Jurisdiction

10. Section 3 of the Act states:

“3. – (1) In this Act “public authority” means –
(b).... any body...which –
(i) is listed in Schedule 1.....”

The entry in relation to the BBC at Schedule 1, Part VI reads:

“The British Broadcasting Corporation, in respect of information held for purposes other than those of journalism, art or literature”

Section 7 of the FOIA states:

“7. – (1) Where a public authority is listed in Schedule 1 only in relation to information of a specified description, nothing in Parts I to V of this Act applies to any other information held by the authority”.

The BBC has argued that the construction of sections 3, 7 and Schedule 1 means that the BBC is not a public authority where it holds the information for the purposes of journalism, art or literature. Consequently, the Commissioner would not have Jurisdiction to issue a decision notice given the wording of section 50.

11. This issue has been considered by the House of Lords in the case of *Sugar v BBC*¹. By a majority of 3:2, the Lords found in favour of the Appellant, Mr Sugar, in concluding that the Commissioner does have jurisdiction to issue decision notices regardless of whether the information is derogated or not. The Commissioner adopts the reasoning set out by Lord Hope at paragraphs 54 and 55 where he said:

“54. Section 7(1) says that where a public authority is listed in Schedule 1 only in relation to information of a specified description, nothing in Parts I to V of the Act applies to any other information held by the authority. What it does not say is that, in that case, the authority is a hybrid – a “public authority” within the meaning of the Act for some of the information that it holds and not a “public authority” for the rest. The technique which it uses is a different one. Taking the words of the subsection exactly as one finds them, what it says is that nothing in Parts I to V of the Act applies to any other “information” held by “the authority”. This approach indicates that, despite the qualification that appears against its name in Schedule 1, the body is a public authority within the meaning of the Act for all its purposes. That, in effect, is what section 3(1) of the Act provides when it says what “public authority” means “in this Act”. The exception in section 7(1) does not qualify the meaning of “public authority” in section 3(1). It is directed to the information that the authority holds on the assumption that, but for its provisions, Parts I to V would apply because the holder of the information is a public authority.”

55.The question whether or not Parts I to V apply to the information to which the person making the request under section 1(1) seeks access depends on the way the public authority is listed. If its listing is unqualified, Parts I to V apply to all the information that it holds. If it is listed only in relation to information of a specified description, only information that falls within the specified description is subject to the right of access that Part I provides. But it is nevertheless, for all the purposes of the Act, a public authority”.

12. Therefore, the Commissioner has jurisdiction to issue a decision notice on the grounds that the BBC remains a public authority. Where the information is derogated, the Commissioner considers that the BBC has no obligations to comply with Parts I to V in respect of that information.
13. The Commissioner will first determine whether the request is for information held for the purposes of journalism, art or literature and if the BBC is required to comply with Parts I to V in respect of the request.

Derogation

14. As outlined above, the Commissioner must first determine if the request is for information held for the purpose of journalism, art or literature.
15. The scope of the derogation has been considered by the High Court in the cases of the BBC vs. Steven Sugar (BBC v Sugar & Information Commissioner [2009] EWHC 2349 (Admin)) and The Information Commissioner and the BBC vs. the Information Commissioner (BBC v Information Commissioner [2009] EWHC 2348 (Admin)). In both decisions Mr Justice Irwin stated:

“My conclusion is that the words in the Schedule mean the BBC has no obligation to disclose information which they hold to any significant extent for the purposes of journalism, art or literature, whether or not the information is also held for other purposes. The words do not mean that the information is disclosable if it is held for purposes distinct from journalism, art or literature, whilst it is also held to any significant extent for those purposes. If the information is held for mixed purposes, including to any significant extent the purposes listed in the Schedule or one of them, then the information is not disclosable.” (para 68 EA2349 and para 73 EW2348).

16. The Commissioner interprets the phrase “to any significant extent”, when taken in the context of the judgment as a whole, to mean that where the requested information is held to a more than trivial or insignificant extent for journalistic, artistic or literary purposes the BBC will not be obliged to comply with Parts I to V of the Act. This is the case even if the information is also held for other purposes.

17. For completeness, the Commissioner considers that where information is held for non-journalistic/artistic/literary purposes and is only held to a trivial or insignificant extent for the purposes listed in Schedule 1, then the BBC will be obliged to comply with its obligations under Parts I to V of the Act.

18. Thus, provided there is a relationship between the information and one of the purposes listed in Schedule 1, then the information is derogated. This approach is supported by Mr Justice Irwin’s comments on the relationship between operational information, such as programme costs and budgets, and creative output:

“It seems to me difficult to say that information held for ‘operational’ purposes is not held for the ‘purposes of journalism, art or literature.’” (para 87)

19. The information relevant to a request need not be journalistic, artistic or literary material itself. As explained previously all that needs to be established is whether the requested information is held to any significant extent for one or more of the derogated purposes of art, literature or journalism.

20. The two High Court decisions related to information falling within the following categories:

- Salaries of presenters / talent
- Total staff costs of programmes
- Programme budgets
- Programme costs
- Payments to other production companies for programmes
- Payments to secure coverage of sporting events / other events
- Content of programmes / coverage of issues within programmes

21. In relation to all of the above Mr Justice Irwin found that the information was held for the operational purposes related to programme content and therefore to a significant extent for the purposes of art, journalism and literature.

22. The information requested in this case relates to payments to talent and expenditure on the BBC Northern Ireland broadcast 'Children in Need' in 2005 and 2006. This is similar to the information considered in the High Court cases. The Commissioner accepts the findings in the High Court decisions. Reading the request relevant to this case and taking into account the context surrounding it, he can find nothing to justify different findings to those of the High Court in this case. .
23. The Commissioner has found that the request is for information held for the purpose of journalism, art or literature and that the BBC were therefore right to refuse to comply with Part I to V of the Act.

The Decision

24. The Commissioner's decision is that the BBC were correct to respond to the request by refusing to comply with Part I to V of the Act as the request is for information held for the purposes of journalism, art or literature.

Steps Required

25. The Commissioner requires no steps to be taken.
