

TRADE MARKS ACT 1994
IN THE MATTER OF APPLICATION No 2275422
BY LUMINAR LEISURE LIMITED TO REGISTER A TRADE MARK
THE ORANGE HOUSE

AND IN THE MATTER OF OPPOSITION THERETO
UNDER NUMBER 80440
BY ORANGE PERSONAL COMMUNICATIONS SERVICES LIMITED

BACKGROUND

1) On 17 July 2001, Luminar Leisure Limited of 41 King Street, Luton, Bedfordshire, LU1 2DW applied for the following trade mark:

THE ORANGE HOUSE

2) In respect of the following services:

Class 41: "Provision of dancing facilities; presentation of dancing displays; discotheque and nightclub services; visual and aural entertainment services."

Class 42: "Public house, bar and restaurant services."

3) On 5 December 2001, Orange Personal Communications Services Limited of St. James Court, Great Park Road, Almondsbury Park, Bradley Stoke, Bristol filed notice of opposition. The grounds of opposition are in summary:

a) The opponent is the registered proprietor of the fourteen UK Trade Marks, one of which (2268980) is pending, and thirteen Community Trade (CTM) marks, one of which (1078989) is pending, (detailed at Annex A) consisting of or containing the word ORANGE.

b) The mark in suit has as its predominant and most memorable element the word "orange". The opponent's earlier marks consist of the word "orange" solus or have as their predominant and most memorable feature the word "orange". The opponent also has a number of marks which have a similar overall structure to that mark in suit. In particular its "The Orange Studio", "The Orange Shop", "The Orange Cybercafé", "The Orange Outlet", "The Orange Talk Café", "The Orange Talk Bar" and "The Orange Kiosk".

c) The opponent states that the services applied for are identical to or encompassed within or are similar to the goods and services for which the opponent's earlier marks are registered.

d) The opponent claims that the mark in suit therefore offends against section 5(2)(b) of the Trade Marks Act 1994.

e) The opponent claims that it has used its earlier “Orange” trade mark registrations continuously since April 1994 in relation to telecommunications goods and services and closely related computing and Internet goods and services. The use has been extensive and the opponent has acquired a reputation in the UK beyond the scope of the aforementioned goods and services. As the mark applied for is similar to the opponent’s earlier marks and is to be registered for dissimilar services the opponent contends that use of the mark in suit without due cause would take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character and repute of the opponent’s earlier marks and so offend against Section 5(3) of the Trade Marks Act 1994.

4) On 12 March 2002, the applicant filed a counterstatement accepting that the opponent was the registered proprietor of the marks listed at Annex A, and that the opponent has made extensive use of its “ORANGE” and “Orange device” trade marks in relation to telecommunications goods and services and closely related computing and Internet goods and services and has a reputation in these goods and services under the “ORANGE” and “Orange device” trade marks. The applicant also accepted the similarity of certain services, which I will detail later.

5) Both sides filed evidence in these proceedings and both asked for an award of costs in their favour.

6) The matter came to be heard on 11 February 2003. The applicant was represented by Mr Brandreth of Counsel instructed by Messrs Field Fisher Waterhouse. The opponent was represented by Ms Buckley of Messrs R G C Jenkins & Co.

OPPONENT’S EVIDENCE

7) This consists of a statutory declaration, dated 11 June 2002, together with two exhibits by Ms Sulina Connal, the Group Intellectual Property Counsel for the Orange Plc Group of companies, a position she has held since September 2001. The evidence set out in the statutory declaration is derived from Ms Connal’s own personal knowledge or from the corporate records of the Orange Plc Group. Ms Connal confirms that she is authorised to make the declaration on behalf of the applicant in these proceedings.

8) Ms Connal states that the opponent has been for a number of years, and continues to be, active across a broad spectrum of entertainment services in Class 41. As a result of this activity the opponent has gained a significant reputation in a wide range of entertainment activities. Examples of such activities include the fact that the opponent has sponsored the British Academy Film and Television Awards (BAFTA) each year since 1998. In the year 2000, the event was renamed as “The Orange British Academy Film Awards”. The sponsorship of this event by the opponent has been agreed through 2002. The event receives high profile television coverage each year and the Awards ceremonies themselves are always broadcast on television. Sample materials relating to this sponsorship are found at exhibit

SC1:2 and show on items such as a press pack, press releases, pages from the BAFTA brochure, and newspaper clippings which show use of the word “Orange” and the CTM “Orange and device” number 127902. Although not every exhibit is dated, it is clear that they all refer to award ceremonies prior to the relevant date. One award sponsored by the opponent since 1999 is the “Orange Audience Award” which is voted for by members of the public.

9) Ms Connal claims that although the BAFTA sponsorship is not in the area of music, clubs and dancing it does illustrate that the opponent has been active in the broader entertainment and arts’ world for a number of years. She also states that the opponent sponsored “Mixmag” magazine, a free guide to UK nightclubs for the year 2000. Exhibit SC1:6 shows a copy of the January 2000 edition of Mixmag in which the opponent’s major corporate trade mark, appears on seventeen of the thirty two pages.

10) Ms Connal states that the opponent has also sponsored other major musical and entertainment events. The opponent’s music sponsorship budget has been just over £3,000,000 for the years 2000 and 2001. Exhibits SC1:7 - 2:4 provide examples of musical and other events sponsored by the opponent which are:

- The Edinburgh Festival Fringe event, the Glastonbury Festival, the Carling Weekend Leeds Festival, The Window on the World International Music Festival, “T in the Park” , and The Orange Enjoymusic service (a music tour of universities throughout the academic year and an information service providing details on the dates and venues of the tour as well as which DJ’s are playing).
- The Q Magazine awards in the area of contemporary music. Part of the opponent’s activities included the providing of a multimedia voting platform for the public across the Internet, WAP networks and also providing an information line about the event. In summer 2000, the opponent first sponsored and was the official communications partner for the Manumission disco nightclub in Ibiza. The club is claimed to be heavily frequented by UK holiday makers. The Orange Arrows formula one grand prix team.

11) Ms Connal states that at these events the opponent provides services such as mobile phone recharging areas, news, information, text and message services and Orange branded promotional merchandise. She claims that the opponent’s involvement with the music/club/entertainment scene promotes the opponent’s main trade marks “Orange” and “Orange device”. She states that “in short, the opponent will be known to the relevant public as a sponsor and/or organiser of such events and a supplier of services at and related to these events”.

12) Ms Connal states that “The opponent is active in the area of restaurant, café and bar services in Class 42”. She states that in October 1999 the opponent opened THE ORANGE STUDIO, located in Birmingham. This provides facilities to the public of conference and meeting rooms, café and restaurant facilities, Internet access, video-conferencing facilities, in-house print, graphics and reproduction bureau facilities. Exhibit SC2:5 shows a copy of a supplement of the Birmingham Post of October 1999 giving information on the opening of THE ORANGE STUDIO as well as two booklets and some brochures of the opponent describing the establishment and some website printouts. The dining and refreshment areas are open to the public. There are also live information plasma screens broadcasting the latest satellite news and music.

13) Ms Connal provides figures for the UK in respect of turnover, advertising and promotion, subscribers to the opponent’s telecommunications services and market share as follows:

Year	Revenue (£)	Promotion and advertising (£)	Subscribers	UK Market share (digital subscribers only)	UK market share (analogue and digital)
1995	113,311,000	25,772,000	379,300	26.5%	7%
1996	376,801,000	49,037,000	785,400	22.9%	11.5%
1997	634,704,000	57,997,000	1,200,000	18.2%	14.2%
1998	916,700,000	59,631,000	2,162,700	18.6%	16.6%
1999	1,489,143,000	89,928,714	4,984,900	20.4%	n/a
2000	2,495,148,000	133,935,560	8,275,000	24.1%	n/a

14) Ms Connal states that the opponent’s “orange” trade marks have a wide reputation, and that the “Orange” brand is widely recognised. She provides a number of exhibits from magazines and newspapers which talk about the “orange brand”. She also lists a number of awards the company has won for its mobile telephone services and products and also for its corporate design and promotion.

15) At exhibit SC2:15 Ms Connal provides a copy of the results of a survey carried out by the brand organisation Interbrand entitled “The 2001 Brand of the Year”. In the survey, the Opponent’s Orange Brand were found to be one of the leading and best-known brands in the European and African section of the survey. Although the survey was after the relevant date, the result reflects the whole of 2001.

16) Ms Connal states that:

“I believe that the independent opinions of the recognition of the Orange brand and the industry accolades resulting in a tremendous amount of awards for a company which began less than eight years ago is testament to the reputation of the ORANGE and Orange Device trade marks. When the extent to which the opponent is already active in the relevant Class 41 and Class 42 activities is considered in context against this background I believe that use of the present applicant’s mark in these areas is detrimental to the distinctive character and repute of the opponent’s earlier trade marks in the telecommunications area.”

APPLICANT’S EVIDENCE

17) This consists of a statutory declaration and a witness statement. The statutory declaration, dated 3 September 2002, is by Ms Jacqueline Lake a Director of Farncombe International Limited, a position she has held since 1986. She confirms that the evidence contained in the statutory declaration is derived either from her own personal knowledge or that from the records of her company.

18) Ms Lake states that her company were instructed by the applicant to investigate whether there were a significant number of third party trading outlets whose name consisted wholly or principally of the word Orange or Orange combined with non-distinctive words such as “café”, “room” or “brewery”, how long such outlets had been trading, to identify any third party Orange outlets in the Birmingham area and finally, to investigate whether Orange Personal Communications Services Limited provided entertainment and restaurant, bar and café services.

19) Ms Lake states that they found current use for a number of trade marks owned by different proprietors in the United Kingdom. These include the ORANGE BREWERY (a pub), THE ORANGE TREE and Device (used on two pubs both with offering meals) and CLOCKWORK ORANGE (the name used by a DJ). They also found the word “orange” being used as part of a name of a variety of pubs, restaurants, cafes, wine bars and night clubs. Typical amongst the names were “The Orange Tree”, “The Orange Grove”, “The Orange Box”, “Prince of Orange”, “The Orange House” and “The Orange Café”. Ms Lake concludes that the word “ORANGE” used in a trade mark sense, whether on its own or combined with other elements, is not an uncommon element for a trade business or brand name for the restaurant and bar, and entertainment sector. “ORANGE” is commonly used in respect of these services by a number of different third party proprietors and is not the exclusive ownership of one party.

20) Ms Lake states that in relation to whether the opponent provided entertainment and restaurant, bar and café services, the investigation was able to establish that there was an establishment called THE ORANGE STUDIO in Birmingham, which would appear to be an Internet café. It was also confirmed that this venue could be hired as one complete complex for a conference or an event.

21) The witness statement, dated 24 September 2002, is from Mr Tony Marshall the Managing Director of the Dancing Division at Luminar Leisure Limited and has been employed by the Company since 1 November 1999. Prior to this, Mr Robinson was the Managing Director of the Emerging Business Division at Luminar Leisure Limited and was responsible for the creation of THE ORANGE HOUSE brand.

22) Mr Marshall states that the mark in suit was first used in the United Kingdom on 14 December 2000 when the first outlet was launched in Swansea. The mark has been used continuously since this time. He provides turnover and advertising and promotional figures in relation to the mark in suit in the UK as follows:

Year	Turnover £	Promotion and advertising £
2000		40,000

2001	88,796	180,000
2002	3,136	200,000

23) At Exhibit TM-1 Mr Marshall provides figures for six outlets. These show a total turnover of £3,159,332 for the 44 weeks up until 31 December 2001. Mr Marshall claims that the applicant has used their trademark THE ORANGE HOUSE in nine outlets across the United Kingdom. He provides the number of customers to visit each of these nine outlets per year as follows:

Location	Number of Customers per year
St.Helens, Merseyside	135,000
Kettering	90,000
Kings Lynne	125,000
Wigan	380,000
Burnley	200,000
Castleford	195,000
Coventry	198,000
Swansea	510,000
Cambridge (Newmarket)	198,000

24) Mr Marshall provides a number of other exhibits as follows:

- Exhibit TM-2 & 4 consist of promotional flyers and leaflets which are said to have been distributed in all outlets across the United Kingdom. They show offers relating to bar, restaurant and public house services. None are dated, although most show use of the mark in suit.
- Exhibit TM-3 consists of flyers promoting the opening of new outlets in Castleford on 31 January 2002 and St.Helens on 22 November 2001.
- Exhibit TM-5 consists of a number of press articles in the United Kingdom relating to the opening of new outlets for THE ORANGE HOUSE in the United Kingdom. I note that all articles are either undated or dated after the material date in these proceedings.
- Exhibit TM-6 consists of copies of the applicant's menus for food and beverages as used in all the applicant's outlets across the United Kingdom, all of which depict use of THE ORANGE HOUSE trade mark. None of which are dated.
- Exhibit TM-7 consists of samples of advertisements placed by the applicant to promote THE ORANGE HOUSE, all of which are after the relevant date.

- Exhibit TM-8 consists of samples of the stationery and the specific design code for the use of THE ORANGE HOUSE and the OH device mark by all its UK outlets.

25) Mr Marshall argues that the evidence filed in the exhibits and his witness statement clearly shows that THE ORANGE HOUSE trade mark in the name of the applicant has been in use in the United Kingdom for a number of years and THE ORANGE HOUSE is a successful chain of public houses serving food and drink operated by the applicant. He states “ Since the year 2000, when the applicant’s first Orange House was launched in the United Kingdom, there have been no instances of actual confusion between THE ORANGE HOUSE stylised and the opponent’s Orange trade marks”. The remainder of Mr Robinson’s witness statement consists of opinion evidence, which I do not propose to reproduce here. I will instead refer to it where necessary in my decision.

OPPONENT’S EVIDENCE IN REPLY

26) The statement, dated 25 November 2002, is by Ms Hazel Mary Buckley, the opponent’s Trade Mark Attorney. She confirms that the information contained in this witness statement comes either from her own personal knowledge or that contained in the company’s files and that she is authorised to make this statement on behalf of the applicant.

27) Ms Buckley explains that she has read the statutory declaration of Graham Michael Robinson and the Witness Statement of Tony Marshall together with its exhibits. She offers the following comments regarding use of the word “orange” by other parties:

- As far as Mr Robinson’s investigation of business names combining the word “orange” with a non-distinctive word or words is concerned, Ms Buckley concludes that he has located only four isolated incidences of use in particular localities of very limited geographical scope, these being;
The Orange Room- a specialist café in London
Oranges Bar Café, Ashford
Orange Discotheques, Reading
Orange Brewery, Pimlico, London
- Mr Robinson’s investigations have shown that apart from the severely limited exceptions mentioned in the previous bullet point above and the use by the applicant itself, all of the occurrences of use of ORANGE by parties other than the present applicant as part of a trade mark or a business name are fruit/tree references or references to the Dutch Royal House or have some further distinguishing elements which detract from any type of overall “orange” impression in the mark such as ELECTRONIC ORANGE or FROG & ORANGE.
- In relation to the investigation as to the opponent’s activities in the entertainment, restaurant, bar and café industries, Ms Buckley comments that it has already been stated in the statutory declaration of Sulina Connal that it is not necessary at this point in time for the opponent to have used its trade mark THE ORANGE STUDIO in relation to any of the services offered at the establishment of that name in Birmingham or indeed at any other location in order for a decision on this matter to be taken-the matter could simply be decided on a comparison of the trade marks and goods/services covered. The evidence supplied concerning the opponent's activities in the restaurant, café and bar area has been supplied to take the position beyond a mere comparison of paper rights and to show the opponent's perfectly legitimate expansion into an area for which it had sought and obtained registered protection to do just that.

- There are nine ORANGE HOUSE establishments in total, the remaining five establishments therefore all opened less than one year before the date of Mr Marshall's witness statement and the first establishment (Swansea) had been open only one year eight months by that date. It is therefore incorrect for Mr Marshall to state that his firm had been trading under THE ORANGE HOUSE mark for "a number of years".

28) Ms Buckley refutes the applicant's claim that the opponent has not used its marks in relation to entertainment services. She provides a number of exhibits, however, exhibits HMB2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 11 are after the relevant date. Exhibit HMB4 is not dated. This leaves exhibit HMB9 which shows copies of advertisements from The Mail on Sunday of 4 June 2000, Financial Times Colour Magazine of 27/28 January 2001 and the Financial Times of 27 January 2001. These advertisements refer to services available via mobile phones on the opponent's network. The service offers guides to clubs, restaurants, comedy, music gigs and cinema and theatre listings. Other services available on the opponent's phone network are directions to cash machines, shops and petrol stations.

29) This concludes my review of the evidence.

DECISION

30) The grounds of opposition are under Sections 5(2)(b) & 5(3) of the Act which state:

"5.-(1)....

(2) A trade mark shall not be registered if because -

(b) it is similar to an earlier trade mark and is to be registered for goods or services identical with or similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is protected, there exists a likelihood of confusion on the part of the public, which includes the likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark.

(3) A trade mark which -

(a) is identical with or similar to an earlier trade mark, and

- (b) is to be registered for goods or services which are not similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is protected, shall not be registered if, or to the extent that, the earlier trade mark has a reputation in the United Kingdom (or, in the case of a Community trade mark, in the European Community) and the use of the later mark without due cause would take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character or the repute of the earlier trade mark.”

31) An earlier right is defined in Section 6, the relevant parts of which state:

“6.-(1) In this Act an "earlier trade mark" means -

- (a) a registered trade mark, international trade mark (UK) or Community trade mark which has a date of application for registration earlier than that of the trade mark in question, taking account (where appropriate) of the priorities claimed in respect of the trade marks,”

32) The opponent has twenty-seven UK marks and CTM marks listed at Annex A. Of these two, UK 2268980 and CTM 1078989 are not yet registered. The other twenty-five marks all have registration dates prior to the relevant date, 17 July 2001, of the mark in suit. They are therefore “earlier trade marks”. In my analysis I shall consider the two pending marks although should I find that the opposition is successful in respect of these marks it will be dependent upon their achieving registration.

Inherent distinctiveness

33) I must consider whether the opponent’s earlier marks are inherently distinctive. The marks all consist of or contain the word “Orange”. The opponent clearly views the word ”Orange” as the dominant feature of its marks. This view is enhanced by the fact that in a number of marks the additional words are descriptive of the building or services on offer (“café”, “studio”, “talk bar” “cybercafe” etc.). The word “orange” is a normal English word which refers to a colour or a fruit. To my mind it has little inherent distinctiveness irrespective of the goods or services on which it is applied.

Evidence of enhanced distinctiveness through use

34) I will deal with the evidence provided by the opponent first as this affects matters that are to be considered under both heads of opposition.

35) I have to consider the issues before me as of the relevant date, which is the date of the filing for registration, 17 July 2001. The opponent has to demonstrate that it had a valid case at this date.

36) The applicant accepted at the hearing that the opponent enjoyed reputation under its “orange” and “orange device” marks in relation to telecommunications. The opponent claims that its reputation goes beyond this core activity. A considerable amount of evidence was filed showing that the opponent sponsored a number of major music and entertainment events. These are detailed in the evidence summary above. It was stated that the opponent provides services at these events but all the examples provided relate to telecommunications.

37) The opponent also provided evidence that it had opened, in Birmingham, a conference facility which also provides restaurant services and internet access. This facility is called “The Orange Studio”. No details of the number of visitors or turnover were provided.

Effect of evidence under Section 5(2)(b)

38) As per Sabel BV v. Puma AG [1998] RPC 199 and Canon Kabushiki Kaisha v. Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer Inc. [1999] RPC 117 the reputation of a trade mark has to be taken into account in the global appreciation of likelihood of confusion. In Sabel the European Court of Justice (ECJ) held that:

“In that perspective, the more distinctive the earlier mark, the greater will be the likelihood of confusion. It is therefore not impossible that the conceptual similarity resulting from the fact the two marks use images with analogous semantic content may give rise to a likelihood of confusion where the earlier mark has a particularly distinctive character, either per se or because of the reputation it enjoys with the public.”

39) In Canon the ECJ held that:

“The distinctive character of the earlier trade mark, and in particular its reputation, must be taken into account when determining whether the similarity between the goods or services covered by the two trade marks is sufficient to give rise to the likelihood of confusion.”

40) Consequently, the reputation of a trade mark can assist where it is not particularly inherently distinctive or where there is a low degree of similarity between the respective goods or services.

41) As previously stated the applicant accepts that the opponent has reputation under its “orange” and “orange device” marks in relation to telecommunications. This reputation is significant and in the telecommunications field I am prepared to accept that the mark is a household name. The opponent claims that its sponsorship of major music and entertainment events has extended its reputation into these fields of activity. However, whilst these events and the fact that they were sponsored by the opponent achieved significant publicity this does not equate to reputation in the goods or services sponsored. The public might note that the event is sponsored by the opponent but such sponsorship is commonplace. The public would not assume that the sponsor has any input, other than financial, to the event.

42) In relation to the use made of its mark “The Orange Studio” whilst the opponent has shown that the facility exists it has not provided evidence of turnover or visitor numbers. It cannot claim to have established a significant reputation under this mark.

43) From the evidence before me I do not consider that the opponent can claim an enhanced distinctive character based on use, other than in its “Orange” and “orange device” marks in relation to telecommunications.

Effect of evidence under Section 5(3)

44) In General Motors Corporation v. Yplon SA Case C-375/97 (Chevy) the European Court of Justice established the parameters for claiming a reputation in relation to Section 5(3):

“Article 5(2) of the First Council Directive (89/104/EEC) of 21 December 1988 to approximate the laws of the Member States relating to trade marks is to be interpreted as meaning that, in order to enjoy protection extending to non-similar products or services, a registered trade mark must be known by a significant part of the public concerned by the products or services which it covers. In the Benelux territory, it is sufficient for the registered trade mark to be known by a significant part of the public concerned in a substantial part of that territory, which part may consist of a part of one of the countries composing that territory.”

45) The applicant’s specification in classes 41 & 42 is such that “the public concerned” must be regarded as the general public. The opponent has to show that its trade marks are known to a significant part of the public concerned in a substantial part of the United Kingdom. Whilst I accept that a substantial part of the concerned public in the UK will be aware of the opponent’s “orange” and “orange device” trade marks, the opponent’s reputation does not extend beyond the field of telecommunications. It does not enjoy a significant reputation in its other trade marks.

Section 5(2)(b) - Likelihood of confusion

46) In determining the question under section 5(2), I take into account the guidance provided by the European Court of Justice (ECJ) in Sabel Bv v Puma AG [1998 RPC 199], Canon Kabushiki Kaisha v Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer Inc. [1999] E.T.M.R. 1, Lloyd Schuhfabrik Meyer & Co. GmbH v Klijsen Handel B.V. [2000] F.S.R. 77 and Marca Mode CV v Adidas AG [2000] E.T.M.R 723.

47) In its original statement of grounds the opponent listed twenty-seven trade marks, at the hearing Ms Buckley, when asked to nominate the mark/s which provided the opponent’s strongest case reduced this list to four marks for Class 41 and eighteen marks for Class 42 which it is claimed have identical specifications to that of the applicant.

Comparison of goods and services

48) The applicant in its counterstatement accepted that the following specifications are similar:

Applicant's specification	Opponent's specification
In Class 41: "Provision of dancing facilities; presentation of dancing displays; discotheque and nightclub services; visual and aural entertainment services."	In Class 41: "Entertainment services."
In Class 42: "Public house, bar and restaurant services."	In Class 42: "Preparation of food and drink; catering services; restaurant services; café and cafeteria services; snack bar services; fast-food restaurant services."

49) The European Court of Justice held in Canon in relation to the assessment of the similarity of goods and/or services that the following factors, inter alia, should be taken into account: their nature, their end users and their method of use and whether they are in competition with each other or are complementary.

50) I also take into account the comments of Jacob J. in Avnet Incorporated v. Isoact Ltd [1998] FSR 16 where he said:

"In my view, specifications for services should be scrutinised carefully and they should not be given a wide construction covering a vast range of activities. They should be confined to the substance, as it were, the core of the possible meanings attributable to the rather general phrase."

51) With regard to Class 41 the opponent identified four marks that have "entertainment services" included in their Class 41 specifications. Clearly the opponent's specification encompasses the applicant's specification. The specifications of the following marks GB2268980 (ORANGE), GB2235555 (ORANGE ENTERTAINMENT), CTM1561877 (ORANGE.COM) & CTM1079169 (ORANGE & device) must therefore be regarded as identical to the applicant's Class 41 specification.

52) Ms Buckley also contended that certain other of the opponent's marks had a class 41 specification which included "entertainment information services". She contended that the customers for these services would be the same as for the applicant's services. I do not accept that providing information about a service is similar to the actual provision of the said service.

53) Ms Buckley also contended that specifications which included goods in Class 9 for videos and CDs on which music and audio and visual entertainment were recorded were similar to the applicant's Class 41 specification. The basis for this was that "it is quite common to record live performance on CDs and videos". There is clearly a degree of similarity between musical entertainment and musical recordings.

54) The applicant has accepted that the Class 42 specifications above are similar. Clearly the "restaurant services" are identical. To my mind the "provision of food and drink" encompasses "public house and bar services". The specifications shown above are therefore identical. The opponent has identified eighteen trade marks which contain the specification shown above which the applicant acknowledges is similar to its class 42 specification. These are UK

Registrations 2268980, 2235555, 2186885, 2186886, 2212631, 2202622, 2202618, 2189410, 2189119 & 2186846, and CTMs 1078989, 1079169, 1561877, 1055391, 1055409, 1364504, 1079391 & 1079433.

55) Ms Buckley also contended that these eighteen marks also contained in their specifications “providing information to one or more people via the Internet at one site utilising a café, bar, cafeteria, bistro, restaurant or coffee house setting”. These services she claimed were identical to bar services and that bar services were similar to public houses. However, on closer inspection not all of the eighteen marks contained this within their specification. Those that do have this within their specification are UK Registrations 2268980, 2235555, 2186885, 2202622, & 2202618 and CTMs 1078989, 1079169, 1561877, 1055391 & 1364504. I am prepared to accept that providing Internet services in “a bar setting” necessarily requires bar services to be provided. To my mind “bar services” and “public house services” are the same.

56) In conclusion, the eighteen marks identified have identical specifications in Class 42 to the applicant’s mark.

Comparison of signs

57) When comparing the signs of the two parties I take into account the following:

(a) the matter must be judged through the eyes of the average consumer, of the goods / services in question; Sabel Bv v Puma AG page 224, who is deemed to be reasonably well informed and reasonably circumspect and observant - but who rarely has the chance to make direct comparisons between marks and must instead rely upon the imperfect picture of them he has kept in his mind; Lloyd Schuhfabrik Meyer & Co. GmbH v Klijsen Handel B.V. page 84, paragraph 27;

(b) the average consumer normally perceives a mark as a whole and does not proceed to analyse its various details; Sabel Bv v Puma AG page 224;

(c) the visual, aural and conceptual similarities of the marks must therefore be assessed by reference to the overall impressions created by the marks bearing in mind their distinctive and dominant components; Sabel Bv v Puma AG page 224.

58) Although the opponent has nominated a large number of marks a number of them are duplicated. I have found that all the marks nominated in both classes have specifications which are identical to those of the applicant. For ease of reference I have reproduced below the marks of the two parties. The Class / Classes where the services are identical are shown alongside each mark number.

59) For the opponent, Ms Buckley described the applicant’s mark thus:

“The only characterising element is the word ORANGE. To explain this. The first word THE is entirely non-distinctive. The word HOUSE is a word in common usage in connection with establishments in which Luminar’s services would be offered and performed, these being restaurants, pubs, bars, dance and entertainment venues.”

60) Ms Buckley stated that the term HOUSE is used in a number of ways and provided some examples: “house wines”, “house beers”, “house speciality dishes”, “front of house”, “the house manager”, “a full house” and “free house”. Thus she concluded “The word HOUSE is therefore nothing more than a generic term when applied to establishments in which Luminar’s services are provided. Despite Luminar’s mark being a short phrase, the only distinctive, distinguishing and memorable element in the phrase is the word ORANGE.” She also contended that the stylisation of the mark was very slight and would have little or no impact on the average consumer.

61) I do not accept all these points. The applicant’s mark has a clear conceptual image and must be considered as a whole. To my mind the average consumer will see the applicant’s mark as referring to a building or venue. Public houses, bars and restaurants often have names which suggest historic links (The Victoria, The Duke of Wellington), rustic connotations (The Horseshoes, The Old Barn) or are more esoteric (The Slug and Lettuce, The Winking Frog). The public is used to seeing such terms. Whether the applicant’s mark would be seen as an oblique reference to Protestant origins, as a reference to previous usage as a store or as descriptive in that the building is or was of an orange hue might depend upon its location in the UK, but whatever the sub-message conveyed, the first and abiding image would be of a building or venue. However, I do accept that the stylisation of the applicant’s mark is so slight that it will have virtually no impact upon the average consumer.

62) Clearly the mark in suit and all the opponent’s marks contain the word “ORANGE”. Also some of the opponent’s marks also share with the mark in suit the word “The”. Whilst there is therefore a degree of visual and phonetic similarity between the mark in suit and the opponent’s marks there are also differences. However, the major difference lies in the conceptual differences. The word “Orange” has two distinct meanings as the name of a fruit or colour. The applicant’s mark uses the definite article “The” to turn the word “Orange” into an adjective which attaches a characteristic to the noun in the mark “House” (see The European v The Economist Newspapers Ltd [1996] FSR 431). In the applicant’s mark “Orange” becomes a description of the colour of a house. Hence the average consumer would view the mark not as an “Orange” mark, as suggested by Ms Buckley, but as an allusive mark.

63) The opponent’s marks “ORANGE”(GB2268980 & CTM 1078989), “Orange device”(CTM1079169), “Orange Entertainment”(GB 2235555) and “Orange.com” (CTM1561877) would all be seen as “Orange” marks. The similarities are outweighed by the differences.

64) The opponent’s marks “The Orange cybercafe & device” (GB2186885 & CTM 1055391), “The Orange talk café & device” (GB 2202622), “The orange café & device” (GB2202618), “The Orange Talk Bar” (GB2212631 & CTM 1364504) and “The orange shop and device” (GB 2186846) all contain the “orange device”.

65) There are another group of marks “The Orange Studio” (GB186886 & CTM 1055409), “The Orange talk bar” (GB2212631 & CTM1364504), “The Orange outlet” (GB 2189410 & CTM 1079391) and “The Orange kiosk” (GB2189119 & CTM 1079433) which do not contain the “orange device”.

66) All the marks contained within paragraphs 63 and 64 above clearly have the words “The” and “orange” in common with the applicant’s mark. However, there are clear visual and phonetic differences. Conceptually the marks are different from the mark in suit. Whilst words like “studio”, “talk bar”, “kiosk” and “outlet” and “house” are all descriptive of places of doing business, they are not alternative words for the same sort of building (like “home” and “house”) and they are all very well known words which are unlikely to be confused through defective recollection.

Conclusion

67) In my view the opponent’s strongest case is served by the “ORANGE” trade mark (GB2268980) which is identical to the applicant’s services in Classes 41 & 42, and “The ORANGE STUDIO” (GB 2186886) which is identical to the applicant’s Class 42 specification. In identifying the “Orange” solus marks (GB & CTM) as providing the strongest case I accept that they are both currently applications and have not achieved registration. Earlier in this decision I found that the mark “ORANGE” was not inherently distinctive and had acquired distinctiveness only in the field of telecommunications. The evidence relating to use of the opponent’s mark “the Orange Studio” was such that it could not claim to have established a significant reputation in this mark. Also earlier in this decision I found that the similarities between the opponent’s marks and the mark in suit were outweighed by the differences.

68) I have to take into account that a lesser degree of similarity between the marks may be offset by a greater degree of similarity between the goods; Canon Kabushiki Kaisha v Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer Inc. page 7 paragraph 17. Also that there is a greater likelihood of confusion where the earlier trade mark has a highly distinctive character, either per se or because of the use that has been made of it; Sabel Bv v Puma AG page 8, paragraph 24.

69) The likelihood of confusion must be appreciated globally, taking account of all relevant factors; Sabel Bv v Puma AG page 224. Although the specifications are identical, and the marks have some aspects in common I believe that the visual, aural and conceptual differences are such that the average consumer would not be confused. I accept that the mark in suit may bring to mind the marks of the opponent but mere association, in the sense that the later mark brings the earlier mark to mind, is not sufficient for the purposes of Section 5(2); Sabel Bv v Puma AG page 224. I do not believe that the association between the marks would cause the public to wrongly believe that the respective services came from the same or economically linked undertakings.

70) As the opposition fails in respect of the two marks which provide the opponent with its strongest case, the same result follows for all the opponent’s other trade marks, including all those shown as pending in the attached annex.

71) Consequently, the opposition under Section 5(2) fails.

Section 5(3)

72) To succeed under this ground the opponent must show that it enjoys a reputation in the earlier right. Earlier in this decision I found that, as at the relevant date, the opponent possessed a reputation in its “Orange” and “Orange device” trade marks for telecommunications such that it is “known by a significant part of the public concerned” (General Motors Corp. v Yplon SA (Chevy) [1999] ETMR 122 and [2000] RPC 572. Also earlier in this decision I found that the opponent did not possess such reputation in any of its other marks. The opponent thus qualifies for the first requirement of Section 5(3) only in respect of its “Orange” and “Orange device” trade marks. The opposition under Section 5(3) with regard to its other trade marks must fail.

73) The opponent's "Orange" (GB2268980 & CTM1078989) and "Orange device" (CTM1079169) trade marks have, inter alia, telecommunication goods within their Class Nine specifications which are dissimilar goods. However, the opponent has not shown that use of the applicant's mark for dissimilar services would take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character or repute of the earlier mark. I note that the Advocate General in Chevy pointed out that Section 5(3) does not talk of a likelihood or risk of confusion. The opposition under Section 5(3) with regard to "Orange" and "Orange device" therefore fails.

74) The opposition having failed the applicant is entitled to a contribution towards costs. At the hearing I was requested to deal with the matter of costs in relation to an interlocutory hearing. As this hearing was in relation to the invalidity action between the two parties I shall deal with this issue under that decision. In the instant case neither party requested costs above the normal scale. I order the opponent to pay the applicant the sum of £2000. This sum to be paid within seven days of the expiry of the appeal period or within seven days of the final determination of this case if any appeal against this decision is unsuccessful.
