No. 15928/M.

THE SRI LANKA OMNIBUS COMPANY, LIMITED, of

No. 41, Victoria Building, Norris Road, Colombo.....Defendant.

This 20th day of December, 1944.

The plaintiff of the plaintiff abovenamed appearing by I. A. B. Ihalgama, her Proctor, states as follows :—

1. The defendant is a Limited Liability Company duly incorporated under the Companies' Ordinance No. 61 of 1938 and having its registered office and principal place of business at No. 41, Victoria Building, Norris 20 Road, Colombo, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of this Court.

2. Under the reorganised scheme of road transport introduced by Ordinance No. 47 of 1942 exclusive road licences were to be issued from 15th January, 1943, only to companies and not to private individuals who owned motor buses. The defendant company was formed to meet the said situation. Prior to the said date the plaintiff was the owner of the motor bus bearing the distinctive No. X 7705 and had in respect of the said bus, road licence to ply it between Galapitamada-Kegalle.

3. After the incorporation of the defendant company the directors of the said company invited the plaintiff, inter alios, to two meetings held 30 on or about 21st December, 1942, and 6th January, 1943, respectively. At the said meetings the defendant company through its directors offered to the plaintiff and to other owners of buses plying between Kandy and Colombo, Kurunegala and Colombo and on subsidiary routes, in consideration of a transfer to the said company of the said bus with its route licence and goodwill, shares in the said company to the amount of the value to be assessed on the said bus, its route licence and goodwill.

4. The plaintiff, inter alios, accepted the said offer. The said bus of the plaintiff with its route licence and goodwill were assessed at Rs. 3,250. The plaintiff thereafter in consideration of the said offer of the defendant company to allot to the plaintiff shares to the said value in the defendant company in or about 18th January, 1943, transferred to the defendant company the said bus and consented to the issue to the defendant company of the exclusive road licence in respect of the said bus.

5. In breach of the said agreement the defendant company has wrongfully and unlawfully failed and neglected to allot and to assign to the plaintiff shares in the defendant company to the value of Rs. 3,250.

6. By reason of the said breach of its agreement by the defendant company the plaintiff has suffered loss and damage in the value of Rs. 750 per mensem. 10

Wherefore the plaintiff prays :

(a) That the defendant company be ordered to allot and to assign to the plaintiff shares in the said company to the value of Rs. 3,250.

(b) To pay to the plaintiff as damages a sum calculated at the rate of Rs. 750 per mensem from 18th January, 1943, up to the date of action and thereafter up to the date of the allotment of the said shares.

(c) For costs and for such other and further relief as to this Court shall seem meet.

Petition of Appeal of Defendant to the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE ISLAND OF CEYLON

S. C. No. 379/M/1947.

D. C. Colombo No. 15928/M

MRS. ALICE WIJERATNE of Galapitamada*Plaintiffvs.*THE SRI LANKA OMNIBUS Co., LTD., of Norris Road,
Colombo..... *Defendant.*10 THE SRI LANKA OMNIBUS Co., LTD., of Norris Road, Colombo *Defendant-Appellantvs.*MRS. ALICE WIJERATNE of Galapitamada*Plaintiff-Respondent.*

On this 30th day of August, 1946.

The petition of appeal of the defendant-appellant above-named appearing by D. F. J. Perera, its Proctor states as follows :—

1. The plaintiff-respondent sued the defendant-appellant in this action for specific performance on an alleged contract between plaintiff-respondent and defendant-appellant to allot shares to plaintiff-respondent to the value of Rs. 3,250 in the defendant-appellant company and for 20 recovery of damages at the rate of Rs. 750 per mensem from 2nd February, 1943, until allotment of shares.

2. This action is one of a series of nine actions brought against the defendant-appellant by various plaintiffs for specific performance of alleged contracts to allot shares and for recovery of damages until allotment. The value to the extent of which shares were claimed and the quantum of the damages, however, differed in each case.

3. The defendant-appellant in its answer denied the said contract and pleaded, inter alia, that the alleged contract for the enforcement of which action was brought was not valid in law and binding on the 30 defendant-appellant and that in any event the plaintiff-respondent had refused to accept shares. The defendant-appellant accordingly brought to Court the said sum of Rs. 3,315.

4. All the nine actions instituted against the defendant-appellant came up for trial on the same day. It was agreed that all nine cases were to be tried at the same time and that the issues framed in action No. 15,925 were to be the issues in this and the other actions and that the evidence led in action No. 15,925 was to be considered as evidence in this and the other actions.

5. The issues framed in action No. 15925 were as follows :—

- (1) Was it agreed between the plaintiff and the defendant at two meetings held on 21-12-42 and 6-1-43 that the plaintiff would transfer to the defendant-company bus No. X 7705 together with the goodwill and route licence in consideration of the allotment to the plaintiff shares in the defendant company to the assessed value of the said bus goodwill and route licence ? 10
- (2) Did the defendant in breach of the said agreement fail and neglect to allot shares to the plaintiff in the defendant company to the said value ?
- (3) If issues (1) and (2) are answered in the affirmative, is plaintiff entitled to—
 - (a) a decree directing the defendant company to allot to the plaintiff shares of the said value in the defendant company ;
 - (b) damages for failure so to allot up to the date of allotment.
- (4) To what damages is plaintiff entitled to on issue (3) ?
- (5) Did the plaintiff agree to transfer the said bus goodwill and 20 route licence in the circumstances pleaded in paragraph 4 of the answer ?
- (6) Was the alleged agreement pleaded in paragraph 3 of the plaint valid in law and binding on the defendant company for the reasons stated in para 10 of the answer ?
- (7) If not, can the plaintiff have or maintain this action ?

6. The case for the plaintiff-respondent was that she was a bus-owner in 1942 ; that at two meetings held on 21-12-42 and 6-1-43 the defendant-appellant which was a company of bus-owners formed in consequence of the promulgation of Ordinance No. 47 of 1942 agreed to allot 30 to the plaintiff-respondent in consideration of the transfer to the defendant-appellant by the plaintiff-respondent of her bus goodwill and route rights shares in the defendant company to the assessed value of such bus goodwill and route rights ; and that the defendant-appellant had in breach of such agreement refused to allot shares.

7. The case for the defendant-appellant was that at the said meetings no final contract was concluded between the defendant-appellant company and the plaintiff-respondent ; that the defendant-appellant was, however, willing to allot shares to the plaintiff-respondent ; and that the plaintiff-respondent refused to accept shares as the defendant-appellant operated 40 its bus service on the Branch Manager System which system was disapproved by the plaintiff-respondent.

8. The learned District Judge by his judgment dated 19th August, 1946, directed the defendant-appellant to allot shares to the plaintiff-respondent to the value of Rs. 3,250 and ordered the defendant-appellant to pay damages to plaintiff-respondent at the rate of 50 per cent. of the said value per annum from 2nd day of February, 1943, until the date of allotment of shares.

9. Being aggrieved by the said judgment the defendant-appellant begs to appeal therefrom to Your Lordships' Court upon the following among other grounds that may be urged by Counsel at the hearing of this appeal :—

- (a) that the said judgment is contrary to law and is against the weight of evidence led in the case, ;
- 10 (b) that the learned District Judge was wrong in holding that there was a completed contract at the two meetings held on 21-12-42 and 6-1-43. It is submitted that the said meetings were held merely to discuss the terms upon which bus owners might transfer their buses goodwill and route rights to the defendant-appellant company ;
- (c) that the learned District Judge was wrong in holding that the document P4 which was signed and granted by the plaintiff-respondent and other bus owners for the purpose of enabling the defendant-appellant to obtain an exclusive licence under Ordinance No. 47 of 1942 constituted in law an acceptance of an 20 alleged offer to allot shares ;
- (d) that if as the learned District Judge holds an offer to allot shares was made at the meeting on 21-12-42 it is submitted that such offer was made without due authority from the defendant-appellant company and that such offer and any alleged acceptance thereof, do not constitute a contract binding on the defendant-appellant ;
- 30 (e) that the plaintiff-respondent and the plaintiffs in the other actions disapproved of the defendant-appellant's system of operating bus services on Branch Managerships. It is, therefore, probable as is the fact according to the evidence of Dr. A. P. de Zoysa and M. Jayasena that they refused to accept shares in the defendant-appellant company ;
- (f) that it is clearly established by the evidence of the plaintiff-respondent and his witnesses that Malawana was authorised to act as their spokesman at the meeting of 17th December, 1943. The refusal, therefore, by Malawana at such meeting to accept shares in the defendant-appellant company of which there is ample evidence is a refusal by the plaintiff-respondent and the 40 plaintiffs in the other actions ;
- (g) that the learned District Judge has clearly misdirected himself on the question of the quantum of damages. It is submitted that there was no material whatsoever upon which the learned District Judge could have awarded 50 per cent. of the value of shares per annum as damages ;

(h) that the plaintiff-respondent has wholly failed to establish her claim for damages.

Wherefore the defendant-appellant prays that the judgment of the learned District Judge dated 19th August, 1946, be set aside and that the plaintiff-respondent's action be dismissed with costs both in appeal and in the Court below and that Your Lordships' Court be pleased to grant to the defendant-appellant such further and other relief in the premises not herein specially prayed for as to Your Lordships' Court may seem fit.

NAGALINGAM, J.

This is an appeal from a judgment of the District Court of Colombo directing the defendant company to allot to the plaintiff shares in the company to the value of Rs. 5,000 and to pay to the plaintiff damages at the rate of 50 per cent. per annum on Rs. 5,000 from 18th January, 1943, till date of allotment of shares. This appeal and appeals bearing numbers 377/M, D. C. (F) Colombo 15926; 378/M, D. C. (F) Colombo 15927; 379/M, D. C. (F) Colombo 15928 and 380/M, D. C. (F) Colombo 15929, 381 M. D. C. (F) Colombo 15930 and 382 M. D. C. (F) Colombo 15931 have been consolidated for purposes of argument, as the questions that arise³⁰ for determination are identical. I shall deal with all the arguments advanced, and it may, therefore, be necessary to refer to certain arguments which may not particularly concern this appeal. The judgment in this case will be treated as the judgment in all the other cases and a copy of this judgment will be filed in each. The plaintiffs-respondents in the other cases will hereinafter be referred to as "the others" or "the other owners".

Prior to the dates material to this action, individual owners were entitled to ply omnibuses along routes in respect of which they were duly licensed. This resulted in unhealthy rivalry and competition between various owners and often led to breaches of the peace and sometimes to the commission of grave offences affecting both person and property. To remedy this unsatisfactory state of affairs the Omnibus Service Licensing Ordinance No. 47 of 1942 was enacted, whereunder a single concern consisting either of a company or of a partnership or of an individual was granted the exclusive road service licence to operate on a particular route.

No. 8
Judgment
of the Supreme Court

¹⁰ The determination of the particular company, partnership or individual to be licensed was governed by a certain order of priority specified in the First Schedule to the Ordinance. Where the exclusive road service licence was issued to a concern or individual, no other person or persons could operate an omnibus service on that route, thus eliminating even other persons who had previously been wont to operate on the route, unless, of course, such persons became shareholders in the company or partners in the partnership. Relief, however, was provided for any person or persons who had prior to the issue of the exclusive road service licence operated on the route and who had not merged his interests either in the ²⁰ company or partnership by declaring him entitled to compensation against the concern or individual to whom the exclusive road service licence was issued for the loss of rights. In the issue of the exclusive road service licence, the topmost priority was given to a company or partnership which comprised all the operators on the particular route. Next in order of priority came a company or partnership which had within its fold the majority of the operators on the route, the majority being determined not by the number of individuals but by the number of route licences held.

Pausing here, as it is not material for the purpose of this appeal, to consider the remaining order of priority, it will be seen that it was of the ³⁰ utmost importance that when a company or partnership applied for the exclusive road service licence it should have been able to make out to the satisfaction of the licensing authority that at least it held the majority of licences on that route. In order to ensure this majority companies and partnerships went all out to secure the co-operation of as many persons as held road service licences on that route.

The Ordinance came into operation on 27th October, 1942, and the defendant company was incorporated in November of the same year with a view to operate an omnibus service on the route mainly between Colombo and Kandy, which included certain subsidiary routes. The plaintiff was

⁴⁰ one of those who had been duly licensed to operate an omnibus service along part of the route along which the defendant company proposed to run its service. Shortly after its incorporation, the defendant company invited all the owners who were plying omnibuses on the route along which the defendant proposed to operate to a meeting, offering to allot shares to them in the company in proportion to the value of their interests, those interests being ascertained on the basis both of the value of the vehicles owned and the route licences held. Shortly after the first meeting which took place on 21st December, 1942, the company alleged it had been issued the exclusive road service licence to operate on this route—vide P2.

The evidence is that the plaintiff as well as the other owners who attended the meeting all agreed to accept shares in the company and to surrender their vehicles and route licences to the company. Whether any, and if so what use, the company made of the consent of the various owners to join the company in obtaining the exclusive road service licence is not in evidence; but, to put it at the lowest, if the company could not induce any of these owners to become shareholders in it, it had to pay compensation to them, and the evidence is clear on the point that the company at that date had no liquid assets with which it could render satisfaction to them. It cannot, therefore, be gainsaid that the company was greatly anxious to see that the owners accepted shares and did not claim compensation from it.

On 6th January, 1943, the plaintiff and the other owners signed documents, of which P4 is a blank form, whereby they consented to the issue of the exclusive road service licence to the company and, what is more important, they undertook to take shares in the company. This was a document drafted by the defendant company and placed before the owners for their signature. Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the word “undertake”, clearly showing that at that date the company was more than anxious that the owners should accept shares in the company. This document, on its being signed, it can hardly be contested, embodied a completed contract between plaintiff and the other owners on the one part and the company on the other, whereby the company agreed to allot shares to the owners and the owners agreed to accept them. In pursuance of these documents the plaintiff and the other owners delivered over their vehicles and transferred their route licences to the defendant company at agreed valuations. It is manifest, therefore, that at this date the owners had done everything that was required of them to be done to entitle them to be allotted shares in the company.

It has been argued that there should have been a formal application for shares before allotment could take place, and as no formal application had been made, the company was never under obligation to allot shares. I cannot accede to this contention. The company does not appear to have prescribed any particular form of application for shares. But where the company without prescribing any particular mode of application, acting by its directors receives funds, in this case vehicles and route licences which are the equivalent of funds, on the promise of allotting shares, I cannot see that the want of a formal application can be regarded as depriving the plaintiff or the other owners of their rights. If further proof of the affirmation by the company of the agreement on its part to allot shares were required, the proof is to be found in a resolution of the company in its minutes dated 24th August, 1943, (P51) whereby it was resolved to allot shares “to those who have surrendered their vehicles to the company”. It is, therefore, plain that the plaintiff and the other owners became entitled to be allotted shares without any further formality.

No. 8
Judgment
of the Supreme

No explanation has been given by any of the witnesses called on behalf of the defendant company as to why this resolution was not carried into effect. On behalf of the company it has been contended that the plaintiff and the other owners, though they may have expressed at the commencement their willingness to accept shares, resiled from that position later and declined to accept shares excepting on certain terms which insisted on the management of the business in a way different from that which it had adopted. Even assuming for the purpose of argument that this allegation is correct, it cannot be said that the plaintiff and the other owners had adopted such an attitude prior to 24th August, 1943, for had they so acted, the minutes would have been explicit on the point and would have excluded from the resolution the plaintiff and the other owners, but the resolution did not. The oral evidence led on behalf of the defendant company in support of its case that the plaintiff and the other owners refused to accept shares has to a large extent reference to the period before August, 1943, but even in regard to the period after August, 1943, the evidence is far from satisfactory in comparison with that led on behalf of the plaintiff and the other owners.

I do not think it necessary to enter into an elaborate discussion of the oral testimony, for the learned trial Judge has discussed the evidence fully. It is only necessary for me to observe that there is ample evidence on record to warrant the trial Court’s finding, and I must say that having regard to the evidence as a whole, after giving due weight for discrepancies, it cannot be doubted that the plaintiff and the other owners insisted right along on their receiving shares but that they were questioning the propriety of the method of management of the business adopted by the company. The criticism of the method of carrying on business by the company has no bearing on the plaintiff and other owners wanting their shares; in fact there is nothing in the minutes of the meeting of directors of the company up to 17th November, 1943, which supports the defendant company’s plea that it was the plaintiff and the other owners who did not desire to be allotted shares. On the contrary, whatever is contained in the minutes up to that date clearly points to the circumstances that it was the defendant company that was averse to allot shares to them.

In the minutes of 17th November, 1943, for the first time, and that in regard to the owner Malawana alone but not in regard to the plaintiff or any of the others, is there a statement that Malawana refused to join the company as a shareholder, so that in regard to the plaintiff and the other owners excepting Malawana it is obvious that the minutes do not bear out the defence set up by the company. What is more, even the correspondence between the parties leads one to no other conclusion. As regards the entry in the minutes relating to Malawana the learned trial Judge has discounted the correctness of that entry and I do not think it is possible to take a view different from that arrived at by the learned trial Judge, especially when one bears in mind that Malawana and the other owners had, before meeting the directors on 17th November, 1943, all attended a meeting of their own earlier in the day, at which they were all unanimously of the view that any attempt by the company to pay them off should be thwarted; besides, Malawana's conduct in returning the cheque forwarded to him on 18th November, 1943, by his letter P19 of 20th November, is further corroboration of this view. I am, therefore, of opinion that the learned trial Judge's finding that it was the defendant company that refused to allot shares and not the plaintiff who refused to accept shares is correct. It has not been suggested that there is any impediment in the way of the company allotting the shares claimed by 10 the plaintiff by reason either of the limitation of the number of persons who could hold shares in it, as embodied in its Articles of Association (the defendant is a private limited liability company), or by the non-availability of shares which could be allotted. I would, therefore, affirm the order of the trial Court compelling the defendant company to allot shares to the plaintiff.

If, therefore, the defendant company was in default in allotting shares to the plaintiff, what damages is the plaintiff entitled to? The contention has been advanced on behalf of the defendant company that the plaintiff would be entitled to no more than the dividends declared by the company 20 subsequent to the date when the shares should have been allotted to the plaintiff and, at best, the interest on those dividends till payment.

Where a company draws up its balance sheet in accordance with resolutions passed by it from time to time regarding the management of its business and the accounting of its finances, the damages which it would be liable to pay to a party to whom it failed to allot shares would properly be determined by the dividends declared as disclosed in its balance sheet, for those dividends may fairly and reasonably be considered as the damages naturally arising from the breach of contract committed by the company. But here the plaintiff contends that the balance sheet drawn up is not in 30 accordance with the resolutions of the company, that the balance sheet contains obvious inaccuracies and, therefore, before damages on this basis could be computed, there should be a rectification of the errors contained therein, especially as by the non-allotment of shares to the plaintiff, he and the others were rendered incapable of having the inaccuracies in the balance sheet rectified, and, if need be, by persuading some of the directors themselves, for it is pointed out that one or two of the directors who were also some of the largest shareholders were not altogether antagonistic to the plaintiff and the other owners.

It is further urged that it was this amendment of the balance sheet 40 that the plaintiff had in mind when on the 24th June, 1946, he agreed to have his claim for damages assessed on the basis of the figures in the balance sheet. It seems to me that to restrict damages to the bare dividend as shown on the face of the balance sheet and to interest thereon would not adequately compensate the plaintiff for the loss sustained by him, for this would leave out of consideration the right and the ability of the plaintiff and the other owners to have had the accounts rectified when they were presented. On the other hand it may be problematical as to whether the plaintiff and the others would have been able to persuade or not the major shareholders to their way of thinking. The Court must in these circumstances determine as fairly as it could the damages that should be awarded, not losing sight of the principle that a wrongdoer should not be placed in a position of advantage by his wrongdoing. I think it would be proper to assume that the shareholders would have done what was right in the event of any obvious discrepancy in the balance sheet being pointed out to them, and one cannot ignore entirely the ¹⁰ possibility of a conversion by the plaintiff and the other owners of one or two of the directors themselves as contended on their behalf. Having regard to all these factors, I think it but legitimate and proper that the dividends should be arrived at after making the necessary amendment in the balance sheet in respect of errors and inaccuracies but not negating the resolutions passed by the company at any time. It is said that the learned trial Judge awarded damages on some such basis, but on behalf of the plaintiff counsel candidly admits that he has not been able to discover the basis upon which the trial Judge decreed 50 per cent. per annum on the share capital, as damages.

²⁰ The business of the company, according to the defence, was carried on by appointing as agents the directors themselves to run services on the entire route allotted to it by dividing it up into sections lettered A, B, C, D, E, F and G, and placing each of the sections under the management and control of one of the directors. These directors who were appointed agents of the company were called Branch Managers, and each branch manager had, so to speak, a monopoly of running the omnibus service on the section allotted to him. He received in the first instance the entire takings on that section, he kept his own books of account, he employed his own servants, he attended to the repairs of the vehicles

³⁰ himself, he paid for the outgoings such as petrol and oil, and both the directors who gave evidence on behalf of the defendant company were also agreed, and their evidence on the point is fully corroborated by the minutes of the special general meeting of the Company held on 22nd January, 1943, (vide P2) that each branch manager had to effect replacements of buses, that is to say, where the omnibuses became old and un-serviceable, the obligation to replace them by new vehicles, was a liability imposed on the branch manager. In order to enable a branch manager to discharge all these obligations, he was allowed to appropriate no less than 90 per cent. of the gross takings of that branch, the remaining 10

of any of the services on its route. It had to pay out of its income its expenses, which would consist of all the items on the left hand side of the income and expenditure account shown in document P11, excepting the three items shown as insurance, depreciation and surplus. It is difficult to see why the insurance of motor vehicles should be regarded as a proper item of disbursement by the company but the plaintiff himself has not sought an explanation of this item at the trial and I do not, therefore, propose to treat it as an item the debiting of which to this account should be re-opened. In regard to the item of depreciation amounting to Rs. 124,179, the explanation tendered by the witness Jayasena is that the sum of Rs. 124,179 was “struck off as depreciation”. He did not say it was depreciation on what, for it certainly could not be depreciation on vehicles, for the company had no vehicles of its own, and the vehicles belonged to the various agencies which ran the service on the various sections and the replacement of which was the liability of the agencies. The witness probably appreciated this himself for he admitted immediately thereafter that the sum of Rs. 124,179 was profit of the company. The plaintiff, therefore, says that the profit of the company should be treated as including the sum of Rs. 124,179 in addition to the sum of Rs. 10,000 shown in the income and expenditure account in document P11, thus revealing the true profit at Rs. 134,179.

At the time of incorporation, vide P3, 5,900 shares had been allotted. On 9th November, 1943, at a directors' meeting further shares aggregating to 710 were allotted among certain others. The plaintiff and the other owners would be entitled to no less than 473 shares on the basis of the share capital contributed by them. The total number of shares, therefore, in the company amounted to 7,083. Dividing the profit of Rs. 134,179 among them, each share would be entitled to a dividend of Rs. 19.19, say Rs. 20. As each share is Rs. 100 in value, the dividend would be 20 per cent for an year.

For these reasons I would affirm the judgment of the District Court, subject to the modification that for the figure 50 the figure 20 should be substituted therein. As the respondent has succeeded on the main issue with regard to the liability of the defendant to allot shares but has failed partially on the question of damages, I would direct that the defendant should pay to the respondent half costs of appeal.
